Senior Ball Held As College Social Season Nears End

Julian Woodworth Plays For 60 Couples In Gay Parisian Setting

In a decorative carnival setting, the last formal social event of the Bard College calendar was held on Friday evening, May 10, when sixty couples attended the Senior Ball of the Class of 1935.

The dance was held in the Memorial Gymnasium, which was decorated to represent a Parisian street scene. Pastel shades lined the walls and a sidewalk cafe was pictured at the back of the hall. Refreshments were served in the entry.

Music for the dance was played by Julian Woodworth and his orchestra, a nationally known band heard frequently over the Columbia Broadcasting system.

The events for Saturday, May 11, included the usual fraternity parties. A dance was held in the evening by Kappa Gamma Chi. The Euxelian and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities also held open house entertainments. In the afternoon, many attended the baseball game with New Paltz or the Bard-Kingston Club tennis matches.

Among the week-end guests were the Misses Mary Banning, Muriel Brower, Marybeth Binckley, Rosalie Breen, Ruth Bjorson, Mary Codet, Marjorie Cox, Janet Christie, Agnes Delmar, Ruth Davids, Elise Dienst, Janet Dunleavy, Alvine Filsinger, Mary Haskell, Blair Hawes, Julia Harvey, Alice Hoyt, Dorothea Kutka, Carlotta Koberlein, Elinor Kley, Helen Leigh Lindley, and Sally Leigh;

Also the Misses Virginia Mead, Elinor Minchenberg, Toni Marsh, Nancy Nussbaum, Christine Plum, Jean Ralph, Marcia Smith, Ruth Smith, Janet Stevens, Betty Taylor, Dell Schwartz, Catherine Degenhart, Catherine Wilford, Grace Weeks, Marie Walmsley, Mary Wehle, Gladys Collins, Jean Howe, Helen Van Laak, Lydia Mange.

'The Forum' Plans A Heavy Schedule For Coming Year

Four Weeks Debating Tour During Reading Period Is Considered

Louis Koenig, newly elected president of the Bard College Forum, the debating and discussion society which was established on the campus last fall, has written to The Lyre Tree concerning the aims, policies and plans of the organization. Mr. Koenig's statement follows:

"Last fall a group of men interested in the oral discussion of problems organized the Bard College Forum. During the year such questions as movie censorship, military training and centralized government have been analyzed. Four men were sent to the Model Senate held at Vassar. Last month the Forum sponsored a non-decision debate with Allegheny College in which the entire audience participated.

Budget For 1935-'36 Passed By College Wednesday, May 15

Increase Voted For Dances And Lyre Tree; In- cludes Year Book

The Convocation of Bard College on Wednesday, May 15, passed the budget for convocation for the year of 1935-1936. Because of items that were deemed of benefit to more of the students than some items of last year, the budget has been cut down on some occasions and money was appropriated to new needs. The students have voted half the expense of the purchase and installation of another projector for the theatre. Also, a sum was set aside for student dances. Unlike last year, there was no money appropriated for movies.

Class of '38 Wins Intra-Mural Meet

Clayton and Filsinger Win Individual Honors

The intra-mural sports season drew to a conclusion with the most interesting event on the schedule last Thursday afternoon, when the Class of 1938 won the inter-class track meet, nosing out the juniors by the slim margin of four points. Clayton and Filsinger, of the junior and freshman classes respectively, took individual honors in the track events with two victories apiece. The broad-jumping of Lefever '35 and the high-jumps of Scott '37 also featured the afternoon's program.

Ted Smith '37 Is Elected To Lead '36 Tennis Team

Theodore Smyth '37 was elected captain of the Bard College varsity tennis team for the 1936 season at a recent meeting of the lettermen in that sport. A member of the team for two seasons, Smyth has played good tennis in many matches and this year featured a consistent form of play throughout the season. He succeeds Harry R. Lefever '35.

Hard-Hitting Team Scores For Drew Against Bard Nine

Ackerman Uses Three Hurl- ers; Nineteen Struck Out By Strange

Coach George Ackerman's Bard nine played and was defeated by a strong team representing Drew University last Saturday. Using three pitchers, Bard was unable to cope with the strong offensive machine of Drew and was soundly trounced 22-1.

The one run scored by Bard was the first tally of the day, Hicks crossing the plate after Testi's drive past the shortstop into left field in the first inning. Scott accounted for the only other Bard hit. Strange, of Drew, managed to strike out nineteen batters after a fifteen strikeout game the previous Wednesday against the Wagner team. Strange went the route for Drew while Bard used Testi, Jastrom and Scott, who managed to gather eight strikeouts between them. Drew has a ground rule limiting all hits to two bases, necessary because of the short field.

The Bard baseball team lost its initial contest on Zabriskie Field to the New Paltz Normal, 13-2 on May 18.

Captain Dienst and Jay Molyneux tallied for the home team while Ray Filsinger gathered two hits, was walked twice, and stole five bases. Jastrom and Testi, who fanned nine men, each poled a hit.

For New Paltz, Terwilliger struck out ten batters, as his team mates connected for fifteen safeties. Corliss and Fersh hit home runs, the former getting three hits and two walks out of six trips to the plate. At the end of the seventh inning the score stood seven to two. In

Kingston Tennis Club Downs Bard In Season's Final

Scarlet Racquet Wielders Take But One Match In Six Starts

The Bard College Tennis team concluded its brief season of six matches, losing to the Kingston Tennis club for the second time last Saturday, May 18, at Kingston, by a score of 7-2. Baitinger won Bard's only singles match in two straight sets against R. Hancock, 15-13, 6-4. Smith and Lefever scored the other victory in doubles against Merrill and Bingham, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. The remaining five matches of the contest were taken by Kingston.

The remainder of the season was played against Albany State, Kingston High School, Dwight School and the Poughkeepsie Tennis Club, plus an earlier match against Kingston. Bard beat the Dwight School, 7-0, and tied the Kingston High School 3-3. The other matches were defeats.

The final scores of the matches were as follows:

Anti-War Action Causes Dismissals

Columbia Committee To Picket P. and S.

At a meeting of several student organizations of Columbia University Monday night, representatives decided to picket the medical school of the university yesterday and today, as a protest against the dismissal of three staff members for participating in anti-war activities at the Medical Center.

The dismissals were upheld by Dr. Willard C. Rappelye, dean of the medical school, who says members of the Anti-War Committee had acted in a manner "prejudicial to the best interests of the vast majority of students, faculty and employees."

A mass meeting, under the leadership of David Ryan, of the Columbia University Anti-War League, was to be held in front of the medical college yesterday. The two technicians and the research assistant, all women, who were dismissed from the school, attended Monday night's assembly.

At the medical school it was believed there would be further dismissals as a result of the Anti-War Committee's actions. The charge would be responsibility for an article in the "Columbia Spectator" claiming faculty suppression of the pacifistic movement. It was reported that the faculty committee at the college would act on the proposed dismissals today.

Denunciation of the dismissals at Columbia was voiced in the editorial columns of the "Yale Daily News" on Tuesday as follows:

"It is apparent that here again the freedom of expression has been shamelessly denied. The danger of this trend in American educational institutions cannot be too often emphasized."

Nine To Meet Hamilton In Season's Last Game

The Bard College varsity baseball nine will complete its schedule tomorrow when it meets the team of Hamilton College on the diamond at Clinton, N. Y. Hamilton has usually given the Scarlet a difficult time of it in baseball, and Coach Ackerman's charges will have to be at top form to bring back a win from the Clintonians this year.

17 Seniors To Be Given B. A. Degrees At Annual Commencement

Portrait of John Bard To Be Unveiled

Bard College will celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary during the commencement week-end and exercises on June 1, 2 and 3. A full round of events has been planned by the trustees and faculty for the three days which will close the undergraduate life of seventeen members of the senior class.

The first of the many events will be the annual athletic banquet in Preston Hall on Saturday, June 1, at seven o'clock. The awards of letters for spring sports will be made at this time, the election of captains be announced, and the cup for intra-mural sports will be presented to the Class of 1935. The banquet will be followed by the class day exercises, when the alga-bra buried by the members of the senior class in their freshman year will be disinterred and cremated with full rites. The college dance, given by the members of the faculty and staff, will be held in the Memorial Gymnasium after the funeral pyre for "Algy Bra" has died down.

The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, D. D., rector of Trinity church, New York city, will deliver the sermon at the Baccalaureate service on Sunday morning, June 2, at 10.30 a. m. Dean and Mrs. Donald G. Tewksbury will hold a reception to the members of the graduating class and their guests at the Dean's house at 4.30 p. m.

The annual commencement meeting of the Board of Trustees of Bard College will be held at 11 a. m. on the morning of June 3. At 12.30, there will be a buffet luncheon in Preston Hall for all mem-

Many Projects Are Planned For Bard Theatre Next Year

Productions, Lectures and Possible Movie In Offing

Hugh F. Gage '36, who has been active in the work of the Bard Theatre during the past year has submitted to the Lyre Tree a tentative survey of the plans of the Dramatics Department activities for the coming year. Following is Mr. Gage's statement:

The Bard Theatre wishes to make closer connections with the other departments of the college in its various productions. This year the art department and the music department have been of considerable aid. Next year it hopes that the three departments will be even more closely connected. In line with this interdepartmentalization the theatre hopes that the various conflicts that have been caused by the productions this year will be alleviated next year.

From the Retiring Board

This issue of The Lyre Tree is the last to be published by the 1935 board of editors. At this time we wish to thank all those who have aided us in keeping an undergraduate publication alive in this college. To the members of Convocation we express our gratitude for the financial backing they have voted us in the last two years. To our many contributors we wish to show our appreciation of their work. We thank our readers for their patronage and suggestions.

We feel in appointing the editorial and business boards for next year that we have chosen a group who will act in the best interests of both the college and the paper. Their plans for the future of The Lyre Tree are well formed and ambitious. Under their guidance the paper will appear more frequently than it has been able to in the past. In every department plans call for expansion. The fact that the Convocation of Undergraduates has seen fit to increase its appropriation for The Lyre Tree, which will make possible many improvements in the publication, is very gratifying. We take our leave with full confidence that the new board will give the college a bigger and a better paper.

Arthur T. S. Kent,
 Editor, 1934-'35.

Lyre Tree Reorganization

In assuming responsibility for editing and publishing The Lyre Tree for the academic year 1935-36, the newly appointed staff takes cognizance of its functions in the life of Bard College. With the reorganization plans of the college nearing the point of completion, we feel that there is an urgent demand for a reorganized organ of student opinion that will adjust itself to new conditions.

The policies of the paper will not be completely formulated until next fall. However, we are prepared to say that most of the news articles which are no longer news to the majority of readers will be put in column form, in an attempt to give more freedom on the part of the writers in recording interesting sidelights and opinions that often have no place in the orthodox newspaper article. The policy of the paper in regard to current social problems—and here is generally the sore point in collegiate journalism—will advocate no particular philosophy of government. As students, we feel that we are hardly well enough informed to attempt to win converts from the ranks of our fellows. However, we will take a firm and active stand against reactionary or subversive movements that would tend to curtail those rights which we feel are undeniably ours as students and citizens.

Convocation has generously granted The Lyre Tree a substantial increase over last year's allotment. We hope to have the first edition ready for distribution very shortly after the opening of the next college year, and appearing regularly every other week thereafter. We are open, without reserve, to criticism from all quarters, and we welcome the opportunity to serve the campus community next year.

Richard H. Rovere,
 Editor, 1935-36.

Hearst Movies Get The Gate

The Little Three, Amherst, Wesleyan, and Williams, have recently caused more than a mild sensation in collegiate circles. Supposedly strongholds of conservatism, they have taken the lead in an active denunciation of William Randolph Hearst's slightly odious fascistic and anti-Red propaganda. They have literally chased the Hearst Metrotone News out of Amherst, Middletown and Williamstown theatres simply because they thought that it was going the way of all Hearst enterprises—jingoism. The yellow press will interpret this as further evidence of the "Red Menace" rearing its ugly head in the cloistered sanctity of our American colleges. We don't know if the Little Three are Red and we discredit Mr. Hearst's application of the word "menace", but we do see the actions of these colleges as healthy signs of discrimination.

Budget For 1935-'36

Passed By College

and the college will take over this expense in the future. The new budget calls for a fifteen dollar fee from each student, and is to be collected by the college in two installments; ten dollars at the beginning of the first semester, and five at the beginning of the second semester. The maximum expense from the minimum of expected students is figured, into the accepted budget so that there will be no deficit, and there will be more surplus than is in the following budget:

$600—year book
400—Senior dance
250—Lyre Tree
200—Student dances
350—new projector
75—incidental expenses
$1875—Total.

Poetry and Such

They sat about the village store
 And smoked their pipes in the hazy light;
 And they huddled close to the battered stove
 That bitter winter night.

They seldom moved, they seldom spoke,
 Their voices were stilted and low;
 For there was a charge which must be met,
 And one of them must go.

A question was in every heart,
 A question ancient and scarred.
 One of them voiced it—"Who'll carry the mail
 From Annandale to Bard?"

A silence fell upon the group,
 A silence which scraped and jarred.
 No one there would carry the mail
 From Annandale to Bard.

Then spoke a fine courageous youth
 As he clenched his white fist hard,
 "I'll give myself, I'll carry the mail
 From Annandale to Bard."

The old men shook their woolly heads,
 They knew he would not come back,
 But he jauntily opened the oaken door,
 And he shouldered the heavy sack.

And that was the last he was ever seen,
 He vanished out in the snow.
 'Twas useless to trail him; he left no trail.

He was snatched away by the foe.
 His empty grave is a dismal sight
 By the church in the old grave yard,
 But his stone is inscribed, "He carried the mail,
 From Annandale to Bard."

Dr. Upton Returning

Edwin Carlton Upton, Professor and Fellow in English, who has been on leave of absence for the past year has been heard from several times this year by friends here on the campus. Dr. Upton has spent the winter traveling through Southern Europe and is, for the remainder of the academic year, studying at Oxford University. He reports that he is thoroughly enjoying himself and is looking forward to next fall when he will return to Annandale to resume his duties as head of the English department.

Down The Grind

Sally Rand, that great exponent of the Terpsichorean art, has turned to another muse in her pursuit of the God Versatile. Now we find that she is entertaining the lads at a different game than that of demonstrating what can be done with (or without) ostrich plumes. The other day she lectured the gentlemen at the Youngstown, Ohio, Y. M. C. A. on "The Economic Dangers of Communism in America." We didn't notice whether she was still holding forth in her establishment by the Incandescent Alley, or not, but if she is gone from New York, then some honest people must be letting down their hair and turning to sack-cloth and ashes.

Several of the more well-known colleges have started something that seems to have fire to it. They, about ten in number, have begun a boycott on Hearst's Metrotone movie news. The details seem to be that they refuse to have anything to do with Hearst products, whether they understand exactly what is in back of them or not. The obvious point is, that if enough people keep up the boycott by not seeing pictures with the Metrotone News, theatre managers will have to do something about it. We're interested in seeing what comes of the business.

A rumor was started the other day that seems to have a hang-over from last year. The staff was informed that at the next war, Dr. Sanford will lead a contingent of Bard students to Leavenworth. Those wishing to join this movement towards standardized living will probably find a healthy crowd out in front of the stone buildings the day war is declared. In the discussion following the rumor, it was decided that at least fifty per cent of the students here would undoubtedly join the Hejira. Further speculations, based on student comment has determined that at Poughkeepsie some will drop out when the bands on Main Street play some stirring martial music. These fish-brained gnats may sign up for the further promotion of wars. After the contingent has reached Leavenworth, the remaining dozen who have not been scared or humiliated into entering the Millionaires' Protective Association will let the gates slam behind them and take up their existence as numbers. At this point Dr. Sanford will organize a new educational system among the inmates. If some students do not care for the humdrum of prison life, but still think that sensible pacifism is effective, they may head for the hills under the leadership of The Catskill Mountain Boys, who will meet in the Lyre Tree office. This contingent is the bunch that doesn't believe the newspapers, the radio, martial bands, or the caustic comments of strange women who will call them slackers on the streets. When the enemy comes into the foot-hills, watch out, for the only success we ever had in a war was in this country, our home territory.

In some old literature on the college written by Warden Fairbairn, is some flowery language that does shame to some of the so-called literary works done on this campus by our walking encyclopedias. After describing the surroundings of the institution, Dr. Fairbairn goes on to say that the only visitor to the distant lands of St. Stephen's is the emissary of the abbot. Imagine the crust of the butcher's boy in taking it upon himself to disturb the quiet of an otherwise forgotten territory.

Some of the sophomores may think that they had a work-out on the moderations, but these little preliminary exams are but quizzes for some of the seniors. Monday night the men in the library were worried by an ominous sound from the front of the building. After much craning of necks and peering over balconies, it was found that Pete Oustinoff, who took and passed his honors in French, was bringing back his books in a college wheel-barrow. He had quite a load, too, and the wheel-barrow was not an affectation, for when the tomes were unloaded by two helping underclassmen, it was found that the books covered half a reading table. It would interest some aspirants in French that the only dictionary in the bunch was one of authors and of their works! Sceptical students, asking if Pete had read most of the books, learned that he had read all of them more or less critically! W. E.

part of next year's program is the possible production of a sound motion picture here on campus which will include nearly every phase of campus life in its making. The students participating in its production will take part in nearly every phase of the making of a sound picture, from the actual "shooting" to the final editing and screening.

A preliminary announcement of the program of the Bard Theatre for its 1935-1936 season has recently been made and seems to be more ambitious than the one of the season just closed. There are to be four major productions of new plays, three of which are to be semi-professional and one to have an all student cast. The methods of production next year are to be more systematized, giving greater opportunity to the undergraduates to participate in some field of a production whether backstage or acting. In addition to the four major productions there will be numerous much smaller productions, a one-act play, part of a long play or some original work of a member of the student body. These smaller productions, shop productions, will be under the full direction and management of the students in the dramatic department and will correspond to the laboratory assignments of the science departments. In addition to the programs outlined above, the dramatic department hopes to sponsor a number of speakers from time to time who are accomplished in some field of the theatre.

Faculty Dance June 1

The faculty of Bard College will give its annual dance this year on the evening of Saturday, June 1. The event will be held in the Memorial Gymnasium and will follow the athletic banquet and the class day exercises, to be held earlier in the evening. The dance will be informal.

Dragon Club Holds Annual Banquet At Beekman Arms

The Dragon Club held its annual dinner at the Beekman Arms on Tuesday evening, May 21, in formal dress but with a gay spirit of informality. Included among those present were the faculty honorary members of the club, Dean Donald G. Tewksbury and Dr. Abbott E. Smith. The club closed its series of lectures by sponsoring a talk by Dr. Reagan, headmaster of the Oakwood School of Poughkeepsie, who spoke last Friday evening on "Trends of Thinking in the Colleges Today."

Dr. Carpenter To Take 5 Students To Canal Zone

Leaving Bard about a week before the beginning of the reading period next semester Dr. Ray Carpenter plans to make an expedition to Barro Colorado Island, on the mainland of the Canal Zone. Dr. Carpenter will take with him from three to five Bard students. Although the exact personnel of the expedition is not known as yet, Henry Kritzler and Dalton McBee will be among the Bard students on the trip.

The purpose of the expedition is to study the habits and activities of New World primates. In addition Dr. Carpenter plans to capture five howler monkeys for the San Diego Zoological Park.

The expedition is being made under the auspices of the National Research Council and the Social Science Research Council. The Bard students will be retained as assistants to Dr. Carpenter as well as carrying on work in their own special fields. In connection with this Mr. Kritzler will probably make a study of tropical birds and Mr. McBee of the economic organization of the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone. The expedition will return about a week after the close of the reading period.

Voyage

With what false hopes, through stormy seas, O star,
You lead me from the course I meant to steer!
Perhaps this was a faulty guide, too far
From courses that would bring me rest and cheer.
With what great force-retarding way, O sea,
You rob me of the progress I have made!
Your gales still seek to take my sail from me.
Yet is there not some value in the fight?
This struggle with the elements may do
The greatest thing to gain the greatest might,
To carry on my heavy tasks anew.
—Michael Stillman, '36.

Small Fire In K.G.X. House Quenched

Blaze At Noon Discovered By Workmen

A small fire broke out under the third floor of the Kappa Gamma Chi fraternity house at approximately twelve noon on Monday, May 27. Smoke was noticed by men working on the new athletic field and the news of the fire was quickly relayed throughout the campus. Many members of the college community immediately went to the K. G. X. house to offer help. The Tivoli and Red Hook fire departments were summoned and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

The damage has not yet been estimated. The fire burned a small portion of the floor in the game room, and the water and extinguishers were responsible for the remainder of the damage. The cause of the fire has not been ascertained. The County Fire Commissioner recently inspected the house and found all wiring and safety conditions satisfactory.

Senior Class Book Published Today

Ninety-six Page Volume Distributed Tonight

The 1935 "Sketch Book", senior class annual, was published today and distributed among subscribers this evening.

The book contains a number of features not incorporated in annuals before in this college, and is ninety-six pages in size. Seventy-nine photographs and thirteen sketches compose the art work of the book. James Gildersleeve and Richard Stevens were in charge of the art work during publication. A historical sketch of the seventy-five years of St. Stephen's and Bard College is featured in the text of the volume. Other write-ups include a history of the senior class and sketches of the activities of the other three classes. Individual photographs of the members of the faculty and of each senior are published with the individual records of each man. The various campus activities, groups and clubs are pictured and publicized in the main division headed "Activities". A complete section of the book is devoted to athletics, with a special article on the place of athletics in the life of the college included. Photographs of each team are printed with the text on each sport offered by the department of athletics, and action photos of the Riding and Outing Clubs lend color to their pages. The cover of the book is a maroon leather, with two panels and the college seal on it. The year year book staff, in addition to Messrs. Gildersleeve and Stevens, included Arthur Kent, editor-in-chief; Martin Goldstein, assistant editor; William Meyer, business and advertising manager; Herbert Dienst; Jay E. Molyneaux; Harry R. Lefever; Pierre Oustinoff and John Mears.

The edition was limited at 125 copies. Extra copies may be obtained while they last from Mr. Myer or Mr. Dienst.

"So great was the success of this debate that in drawing up its plans for the coming year the Forum will schedule a series of debates with other colleges. The first debate will be with our neighbor, Vassar College. This and all other such debates taking place during the course of the year will be open to the college community.

"For the field period, the Forum has ambitious plans. It is intended that a group of men will take to the road for four weeks, debating the leading colleges of the East and South. Such a trip 'will put Bard on the map,' for colleges will be debated that could never be met in athletic competition. The field period being completed, the Forum will sponsor several debates with visiting colleges.

"Bard will again be represented at the Model Senate. An important activity will be the continuance of the public discussion of contemporary problems of interest to the college community. Those issues which provoke widespread interest will be welcomed for discussion in the Forum. Let it be understood that the Forum has adopted no platform; it has taken no definite stand on contemporary problems. It is merely an outlet of free opinion.

"With these plans in mind the Forum will endeavor their fulfillment during the coming year. It will welcome those who are interested in this sort of work, and who will give their whole-hearted cooperation in its accomplishment.

"The officers for the coming year are: president, Louis Koenig; vice-president, Howard Murphy; secretary, Jacob Cremer; treasurer, Dalton McBee. Martin Goldstein and Edmund Spillane have been named honorary members in recognition of their work during the past year. Dr. Carpenter is the advisor to the Forum, and Dr. Edwards is consulted on economic questions."
